Civitan is a worldwide community service organization of men, women, and teenagers working together in 22 countries across the globe to help people less fortunate than themselves. Civitan clubs provide a great deal of service to their communities, with an emphasis on aid to people with developmental disabilities, youth leadership development, and good citizenship. Also, Civitans fund the Civitan International Research Center, a research and treatment facility for people with developmental disabilities.

Through Civitan, club members discover the best in themselves and in others. Civitan gives its members opportunities to develop new friendships and business acquaintances, while gaining valuable skills that can be used in all aspects of life. Most importantly, however, members find in the organization opportunities to make their communities better places to live and work.
